

Law enforcement guide to COVID 19 enforcement

As the state, county, and cities begin the process of re-opening, it is important that law enforcement have an understanding as to what is and is not permissible in their jurisdiction. The list is changing daily. At a minimum, law enforcement officers should know that in San Diego County, social distancing and face coverings whenever a person is in a business or within six feet of another person who is not a member of their family or household are required. Additionally, some businesses are not allowed to operate while others may only operate with modifications and restrictions.

In attempting to determine whether a violation is occurring for an activity not described below, a law enforcement officer should look to see if the activity is one of low risk to the spread of COVID-19, and whether it is being conducted with the minimum requirements set by the County of San Diego, and the State of California to help prevent the spread of the virus.
